Tips to Help Adoption

Deploying FFRS is easy. Here are some helpful tips that can carry your team through your launch.

1. Educate your first responders. Schedule a meeting with all of your first responders and show them what FFRS is, how it works, and most importantly what it can do for your department and the community you serve.

2. Set clear expectations. Change within any organization is likely to produce a little tension and frustration. Consider your first responders feedback when configuring your Standard Operating Guidelines. Making them feel like they are part of the process will make your team feel invested in the outcome. Finally, make the use of FFRS a mandatory component to your daily operations and hold your first responders accountable to its use.

3. Reinforce the value. FFRS is a simple and easy to use tool that provides your department with exceptional data that can help make your team more efficient and effective.

4. Use it every day. Utilize FFRS daily and make it part of your first responders routine to call it every time they are tapped out.

5. Recognize early adopters. Publicly compliment and encourage your go getters. They will become your future advocates and resource to help keep others accountable.

6. Be patient with the process. Implementing a new system can take time, and we’ve worked hard to make FFRS easy to use so you can hit the ground running.

7. Make it yours. Take time to configure your Standard Operating Guidelines and fully train your first responders on how to use FFRS.

8. Ask for a helping hand. Email or call, we would be happy to help!
